

OXYGEN SEPARATION THROUGH HYDROXIDE-CONDUCTIVE MEMBRANE

ABSTRACT

An electrochemical cell for separating a first gas from a mixture of gas is provided, particularly for separating oxygen from air. The cell includes a first electrode, a second electrode and a hydroxide-conducting membrane between the first electrode and the second electrode.